UEFA European Championship

The European Championship began in 1960 as the European Nations' Cup. Early final tournaments had only four teams. The modern EURO expanded to eight teams in 1980, sixteen in 1996, and twenty-four in 2016.

How it works

- UEFA national teams qualify over roughly two years of group matches before the finals.
- The finals open with a group stage; the best-placed teams in each group move on.
- From the quarterfinals onward it is a straight knockout: a single loss ends a team's tournament.
- The final decides the champion; no third-place match has been played since 1980 (see "Historical format note" below).

Historical format note

A third-place match was played through 1980. From 1984 onward, UEFA recognizes both defeated semifinalists without ranking them third and fourth. The table therefore uses neutral “other semifinalist” wording.

Memorable moments

- Antonín Panenka's famous chipped penalty decided the 1976 shoot-out.
- Denmark entered the 1992 tournament late and went on to win it.
- Greece produced one of international football's greatest surprises in 2004.
- Spain became the first nation to retain the EURO title in 2012.
- The delayed EURO 2020 was played in 2021 across multiple countries.
- Spain won a record fourth title in 2024.
