FIFA World Cup

The FIFA World Cup began in Uruguay in 1930. It was not played in 1942 or 1946 because of the Second World War and its aftermath. The competition expanded over time from 13 teams in 1930 to 48 teams in 2026.

ℹ️ How it works

- National teams first play years of qualifying matches within their own confederation to win one of a limited number of finals places.
- The finals begin with a group stage, where each team plays the others in its group; the leading teams advance.

- From the round of 16 onward, it is a straight knockout: one defeat and a team is out.
- The two semifinal winners meet in the final to decide the champion.
- The tournament has expanded several times since 1930 - see "Format milestones" below for exactly when.

📝 Final venues

Every World Cup edition has decided its champion in one match at one stadium, including 1950's final-group decider between Uruguay and Brazil (see "Format milestones" below) - unlike Copa América, no era of this competition has settled the title by league table or a two-legged tie. A reported attendance figure is added below where it could be confirmed via two independent sources - 21 of the 23 editions clear that bar. 1930 and 1950 are left without one despite being extensively documented: both are genuinely disputed rather than merely unconfirmed, since their most commonly cited figures split between an official/paid count and a larger total-inside-the-stadium estimate, and no single number can be presented as fact.

- 1930: Estadio Centenario, Montevideo (Uruguay).
- 1934: Stadio Nazionale PNF, Rome (Italy) - a reported attendance of 55,000.
- 1938: Stade Olympique de Colombes, Colombes, near Paris (France) - a reported attendance of 45,000.

🎉 Memorable moments

- Uruguay defeated Brazil in the decisive 1950 match at the Maracanã, a result remembered as the Maracanazo.
- Brazil's 1970 side became the first team to win three World Cups.
- Diego Maradona inspired Argentina in 1986.

- The 1930 tournament did not include a third-place match. FIFA's historical ranking places the United States third and Yugoslavia fourth.
- The 1950 final positions came from a four-team final group rather than semifinals and a final.
- “Germany” totals conventionally include West Germany's results.
