FIFA World Cup

The FIFA World Cup began in Uruguay in 1930. It was not played in 1942 or 1946 because of the Second World War and its aftermath. The competition expanded over time from 13 teams in 1930 to 48 teams in 2026.

How it works

- National teams first play years of qualifying matches within their own confederation to win one of a limited number of finals places.
- The finals begin with a group stage, where each team plays the others in its group; the leading teams advance.
- From the round of 16 onward, it is a straight knockout: one defeat and a team is out.
- The two semifinal winners meet in the final to decide the champion.
- The tournament has expanded several times since 1930 - see "Format milestones" below for exactly when.

Format milestones

- 1930: 13 teams played the first edition.
- 1950: no single final was scheduled; the decisive final-group match between Uruguay and Brazil determined the champion.
- 1982: the field expanded from 16 to 24 teams.
- 1998: the field expanded to 32 teams.
- 2026: the field expanded to 48 teams and was hosted by three countries for the first time.

Memorable moments

- Uruguay defeated Brazil in the decisive 1950 match at the Maracanã, a result remembered as the Maracanazo.
- Brazil's 1970 side became the first team to win three World Cups.
- Diego Maradona inspired Argentina in 1986.
- Croatia reached its first final in 2018.
- Argentina and France played a 3–3 final in 2022 before Argentina won the shoot-out.
- Spain won its second title in 2026.

Editorial notes

- The 1930 tournament did not include a third-place match. FIFA's historical ranking places the United States third and Yugoslavia fourth.
- The 1950 final positions came from a four-team final group rather than semifinals and a final.
- “Germany” totals conventionally include West Germany's results.
